

The Nativity in Bethlehem

In our past studies of Christmas, we have been able to confirm from the research provided by Jack Finegan's Handbook of Biblical Chronology and Starry Night 6 that the date of our Savior's birth was June 17, 2 B.C. What follows is how we determined this:

The Magi were experts in the field of astronomy and the history of divine astronomy goes back to Adam, Seth, and Enoch. When one has knowledge of both the science of astronomy and the interpretation of the signs, then he who has eyes to see, is able to see the message found in the stars.

And so the extremely unusual performance of Jupiter's triple conjunction with Regulus in the constellation of Leo was one that caused the Magi to sit up and take notice.

The sequence began in early September, 3 B.C., when Jupiter, going from west to east, passed by Regulus forming a conjunction that almost united the two objects on the fourteenth: king planet (Jupiter) merges with the king star (Regulus) in the king constellation (Leo).

In early February, 2 B.C., Jupiter entered retrogradation and began a loop that would conjunct with Regulus twice more, February 13, 2 B.C. during retrograde and then, after coming to a stop and resuming prograde, it conjuncted with Regulus a third time on May 15, 2 B.C. completing the triple bypass.

Hot on the heels of this stellar phenomenon, Venus joined the light show two weeks later when it entered the constellation of Leo. It streaked across the sky in a twenty-day dart, conjuncting with Regulus on June 11 and then moving on to conjunct Jupiter on June 17.

The visual magnitudes of Jupiter, -2.70, and Venus, -4.40 is the brightest celestial event possible excepting the Sun (-26.8).¹ By comparison the brightest star is Sirius with a visual magnitude of -1.46; Regulus is number twenty-one at +1.36.²

When the Magi added this event to their charts they began the previous September, they were able to calculate that the original conjunction of September 14, 3 B.C. of Jupiter with Regulus followed by Venus in Vergo who was clothed by the Sun with the Moon at her feet, indicated the virgin pregnancy

² <http://www.atlasoftheuniverse.com/stars.html>

Added to this was Jupiter's second conjunction of Regulus on February 20, 2 B.C. followed by a third conjunction on May 12, 2 B.C. Once done, Venus made its sprint across Leo to conjunct with Jupiter on June 17 announcing the virgin birth with the night sky's brightest possible flare of light.

Seeing this and considering all the silent speech poured forth over the past nine months, the Magi concluded this was Messiah's star and began making plans to travel to Jerusalem.

The culture of the United States is based on Christianity and with it the traditions that have been established over its 2000-year history. That Progressives have mounted an all-out assault on both is a clear indication for those with a biblical worldview that Lucifer has in his sights the complete destruction of this client nation by means of a long march through its institutions and Christmas is one of its major targets.

The Nativity in Bethlehem: The Virgin Birth and the Angelic Annunciation

Luke 2:7 And Mary gave birth to her first-born Son. She wrapped Him in strips of cloth [σπαργανόω (sparganóō)] and she laid Him in a manger [φάτνη (phátne)] because there was no vacancy in the inn.

v. 8 In that same region there were shepherds living out in the fields and they were guarding their flocks by night.

v. 9 And an angel from the Lord [Γαβριήλ (Gabriel): seraph rank king of arms of the Angelic College of Heralds] stood before them and the glory of the Lord shined around them and the shepherds were very afraid.

v. 10 And the angel said to them, "Stop being afraid! For behold, I bring you good news of great happiness which shall be for all people.

v. 11 "Today, in the city of David there has been born for your benefit a Savior, who is Christ the Lord."

Two passages from the Old Testament are fulfilled at the time of this annunciation to the shepherds:

Micah 5:2 "As for you, Bethlehem Ephrathah, too little to be among the clans of Judah, yet from you One will go forth on My behalf to be ruler of Israel [true humanity]. His goings forth are from long ago, from the days of eternity [undiminished deity]."

Isaiah 7:14 “Therefore, the Lord Himself shall give you a miraculous sign: Behold, the virgin shall become pregnant and bear a Son, and she will call His name Immanuel [God with us].”

The Sign of the Cross:

Luke 2:12 “This sign is for your benefit: you will find the Baby wrapped in strips of cloth and lying in a feeding trough.”

There is a technical grammatical arrangement leading off this verse that causes a very subtle but yet misleading translation in our English Bibles. The three major ones read basically the same: “This is a sign for you.”

However, the verb εἰμί, eimí: “to be,” is not in the Greek manuscripts. The grammar demands it but it is not unusual for the sake of emphasis to leave the verb out of certain sentences and such is the case here.

The emphasis is on the word σημεῖον (sēmeíon) and translated “sign.” The verse begins with the pronoun οὗτός (houtós), translated “this.” It draws attention to the subject, “sign.”

What follows is an ellipsis where the verb eimí would ordinarily go and then the subject: “This is a sign” would be the complete translation. The word for “sign”: sēmeíon, would normally be in the nominative case, but, instead, it is in the accusative case. This opens up a number of possibilities for the exact translation. But in context, the emphasis is not going to be on the sign itself but on what the sign represents.

Therefore, the following conclusion is reached: sēmeíon is a nominative subject in accusative form. This demands that the verb eimí be supplied for the ellipsis. Because of the accusative form the following translation emerges: “This sign is for your benefit.”

The word sēmeíon, or “sign,” has three applications in context all of which are to the benefit of the shepherds as well as all believers of any generation:

1. Something by which something is known. By this sign we will be able to learn a very important doctrine.
2. A system which teaches something important. A very important doctrine is going to be associated with the Messiah’s clothing and location. It helps describe the “good news of great happiness” spoken by Gabriel in verse 10.
3. A sign for identification of a person of great importance. The mission of the Messiah is revealed in the sign.

What follows is the revelation of the sign in two sentences. Number 1: “You will find the Baby wrapped in strips of cloth.”

The words, “wrapped in strips of cloth” are one word in the Greek, the perfect passive participle of the verb σπαργανόω (sparganōō): “having been wrapped in strips of cloth.” The etymology of this word is instructive:

1. Sparganōō was first used by Hippocrates [Ἱπποκράτης (Hippócrátēs)], the fourth-century B.C. Greek physician known as the Father of Medicine. However, he is incorrectly credited with writing the Hippocratic oath administered to graduate physicians.
2. The best definition of sparganoō is “burial wrap.” In the ancient world, medical areas had a supply of this cloth available so that whenever a patient died he could be immediately wrapped and buried.
3. When a wounded patient was being treated for cuts, swaths of this material were torn off and used as bandages.
4. That the newly born Christ Child is wrapped in burial cloths is said by Gabriel to be a sign: the Messiah is identified with death on the day of his birth.
5. Those who were believers would be able to understand the sign. They could relate Old Testament prophecies with a suffering Messiah. For example:

Isaiah 53:5 He was pierced through for our transgressions, He was crushed for our iniquities; the chastening for our peace [reconciliation] fell upon Him, and by his scourging we are healed [spiritually].

v. 9 His grave was assigned with wicked men, yet He was with a rich man [Joseph of Arimathaea] in His death, because He had done no violence, nor was there any deceit in His mouth.

6. For these shepherds, knowledge of such passages of Scripture enabled them to understand the sign of the death wrappings around the newborn Messiah.
7. The Father’s plan for salvation called for the undiminished deity of the Second Person of the Trinity to become inseparably united with true humanity, yet without sin.
8. This required the virgin pregnancy and the virgin birth.
9. Without a human father, Jesus was born as Adam was created. He was trichotomous, minus an inherited sinful nature, and therefore, minus the imputation of Adam’s original sin.

10. Consequently, on that first Christmas night, Jesus arrived in this world as a Lamb without spot or blemish—the very same description applied to the sheep the shepherds were guarding on the outskirts of Bethlehem.
11. These were sacrificial animals—without spot or blemish—whose blood covered the sins of the people on each Day of Atonement.
12. Jesus as the Christ was destined to be a substitute for the people; He was decreed to die on the cross once for all.

Romans 5:8 God demonstrated His own love toward us in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died as a substitute for us.

1 Peter 2:24 He Himself bore our sins in His body on the cross, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness; for by His wounds we are now healed.

2 Corinthians 5:21 God made Him Who knew no sin to be made sin as a substitute for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.

13. In Romans 5:8 and 2 Corinthians 5:21 we see the translation “as a substitute for us.” This includes the proposition ὑπέρ (hupér) which is usually translated “for us.” Combined with the genitive of advantage of the pronoun, ἐγώ (egó), translated “us,” the phrase can be rendered “on behalf of us,” or “instead of us.” Both carry the idea of substitution and this is the best way to translate the phrase: “as a substitute for us.”
14. The Christ Child wrapped in burial cloths is a sign that He entered this life at the first Christmas with the assigned mission to become our substitute: to die spiritually for our sins (Isaiah 53:9) and to die physically so that we might have a resurrection body just like His (1 John 3:2).
15. The substitutionary death of Christ is often diminished, ignored, or unknown to those who write commentaries. Yet it is the source of our salvation although His physical death is quite often assumed to be.
16. Here are two sources that comment on מָוֶת (maweth), the Hebrew word for death which is found in:

Isaiah 53:9 His grave was assigned with wicked men, yet He was with a rich man in His deaths [מָוֶת (maweth)], because He had done no violence, nor was there any deceit in His mouth.

53:9 death. In the Hebrew the word rendered “death” is an intensive plural. It has been suggested that it speaks of the violence of Christ’s death, the very pain of which made it like a repeated death.³

מוֹתָי [mothe] is a plural exaggerativus here; it is applied to a violent death, the very pain of which makes it like dying again and again.⁴

17. What is missed by Scofield and Delitzsch is that Jesus died twice on the cross, therefore, the plural should be translated literally instead of as an intensive. The New Testament distinguishes these two deaths by the use of two Greek words for death:

In order to purchase our salvation, Christ had to pay the price of spiritual death. The great difference between the spiritual death of Christ and His physical death cannot be emphasized too strongly. The fact that Christ died twice on the cross is borne out by the use of the Greek and Hebrew words in several passages.

For example, in Colossians 1:22 [He has now reconciled you in His fleshly body through death...”] the word “death” is in the singular—one death. The Greek noun thanatos refers to His spiritual death. When it comes to His physical death, the Greek word is nekros. When the resurrection of Christ is mentioned, it is often from nekros, not from thanatos. The only time that nekros is used for spiritual death is when it is found in the plural, as the object of the preposition ek, as in Colossians 2:12, “... God having raised Him out from the deaths.” Another example is the plural of meweth, “deaths,” in the Old Testament.

His grave was assigned [literally, the Father assigned Christ’s grave] to be with wicked men [the two thieves], Yet with a rich man in His death [deaths]. (Isaiah 53:9a, NASB)

The plural use of “deaths” is not generally understood, and therefore, the meaning of the blood of Christ is obscured. (p. 13)

When His spiritual death was complete, Jesus Christ shouted, “Tetelestai!”—the perfect tense meaning, “It is finished in the past with results that go on forever!” (John 19:30). Note that our Lord was still speaking after salvation was completed. Obviously He could not have spoken if He were physically dead! And certainly if He was still physically alive on the cross after salvation was complete, His physical death could have nothing whatever to do with the payment of sin!⁵ (p. 14)

³ C. I. Scofield, ed., The Scofield Study Bible: NASB (New York: Oxford University Press, 2005), 991n.

⁴ Franz Delitzsch, Biblical Commentary on the Prophecies of Isaiah, 3d ed., trans., James Martin (1877; repr., Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., 1969), 2:329.

⁵ R. B. Thieme, Jr., The Blood of Christ, 5th ed. (Houston: R. B. Thieme, Jr., Bible Ministries, 1989), 13–14.

18. This is a critical doctrine because if it is assumed the payment of our sins was the execution of Jesus, then the penalty for sin would be physical death. If that were true and since Jesus Christ died physically for our sins, then we should no longer die physically.
19. The penalty for sin is established by the Lord in His lone prohibition issued to Adam and Ishah in Eden:
- Genesis 2:17 “But from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil you shall not eat, for the day that you eat from it you will surely die.”
20. The phrase “surely die” is actually the doubling of the Hebrew verb מוֹת muth. Here is the way it looks in the Hebrew text: מוֹתָּ מוֹתָּ (muth: the Qal infinitive absolute and tamuth: the Qal imperfect).
- The infinitive absolute used before the verb to strengthen the verbal idea, i.e. to emphasize in this way either the certainty or the forcibleness and completeness of an occurrence. In English, such an infinitive is mostly expressed by a corresponding adverb, but sometimes merely by putting greater stress on the verb; e.g. Genesis 2:17, מוֹתָּ מוֹתָּ [muth tamuth]: thou shall surely die.⁶
21. Literally translated the phrase would read “dying you will die,” but it is an idiom that indicates the intensity of the death or as Heinrich Gesenius puts it “the certainty or the forcibleness and completeness of an occurrence.”
22. Violation of the mandate would therefore result in the immediate death of the man and/or the woman. But when each bit into the forbidden fruit neither died physically. Consequently, the penalty was not physical death but spiritual death. We know that Adam lived for 930 years after he first sinned according to Genesis 5:5.
23. Adam and Ishah immediately lost their personal relationship with God which could only be restored by the redemption solution: faith alone in Christ alone. They would eventually die physical death. Physical death is an eventual result of spiritual death, but physical death is never the same as spiritual death. If it were, members of the human race would all die physically at birth since we are all born spiritually dead.

Romans 5:12 Therefore, just as through one man [Adam] sin [the sin nature] entered into the world, and death [θάνατος (thánatos): spiritual] through the sin [nature]; consequently death [spiritual] spread to all men, because all sinned (when Adam sinned).

24. In order to pay the price for our salvation, Christ had to endure spiritual death on the cross. The Christ Child wrapped in sparganóō implies His destiny is physical death. But Scripture attests to the fact that it is His spiritual death that results in our redemption.
25. Those who execute the redemption solution are reconciled to God, receive eternal life, and have the promise of a resurrection body. The resurrection body is the aftermath of physical death; salvation is made possible by His spiritual death.
26. The sign in the manger is the prophetic message of the Lord's destiny to become a "substitute for us" by dying spiritual death.
27. Gabriel's second indicator to the shepherds regarding the Christ Child is that He would be found "lying in a manger." The word for manger is φάτνη (phatnē): a feeding trough.
28. The ultimate Christmas gift ever given was wrapped in burial cloths and placed in an animal's feeding trough:

2 Corinthians 9:15 Thanks be to God for this indescribable gift!

John 3:16 "For God loved the world so much that He gave His uniquely-born Son for the purpose that whosoever believes in Him should not perish and with the result that he would have eternal life.

29. No pretty wrapping paper with glossy bows and sparkling stickers; no stately trees lush with limbs studded with glimmering lights. Instead, a unique Child on a mission of death swathed in burial cloths and lying inside a stark, wooden feeding trough.

The Lord entered this world prepared
On a cross of wood to die,
While He, wrapped in burial cloths,
In a feeding trough did lie.⁷

30. The shepherds were believers; their bosses, the spiritual leaders of Judea, the master theologians of the day, the scribes and the Pharisees, were unbelievers.

⁷ Joe Griffin, "The Sign," (St. Charles: Joe Griffin Media Ministries, 2010), v. 1.

31. Up in Jerusalem, the priesthood was carrying out its duties of conducting rituals, sacrificing designated animals, and preparing for feast days—all of which had now been reduced to ritual without reality.
32. The shepherds, whose duty was to guard the spotless and unblemished lambs for the Levitical sacrifices, knew the true identity of their true Messiah. Gabriel had given them all the doctrines they would need to find the Christ Child: He was born that day in Bethlehem, wrapped in burial cloths, and lying in a feeding trough.
33. These shepherds knew their Master's manger was in Bethlehem, but before they could leave the field and hasten into town, they were privileged to see the entire angelic army perform a pass in review before the Lord's feeding trough.
34. In His undiminished deity, Jesus Christ is the Lord of the Angelic Armies. The Commander-in-chief is on a special mission which, if successful, will change human history and resolve the angelic conflict.
35. As Operation Reconciliation gets underway, His angelic armies pay tribute to their eternal leader by performing a pass in review. They assemble over the sheep fields outside Bethlehem and then march past the manger where their Commander is bivouacked with His human family.

Luke 2:13 And suddenly a multitude of the army of heaven appeared with the angel, praising God and saying,

v. 14 "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among people with whom He is pleased."

36. Those who have peace are those with whom God is well-pleased. God is well-pleased with those who believe that Jesus is the Messiah, who entered this life wrapped in burial cloths, lying in a trough of wood. This sign speaks of His mission's victorious culmination when He dies spiritually as our substitute on Calvary's cross of wood.

Colossians 1:19 God was pleased to have all His fullness [the prototype spiritual life] dwell in the Son

v. 20 and through Him to reconcile all things to Himself by making peace through the blood of His cross—whether things on the earth or things in heaven.

Colossians 1:21 And you were at one time strangers and enemies in your minds as expressed through your evil deeds,

v. 22 but now He has reconciled you by His physical body through death to present you holy, without blemish, and blameless before Him—

Colossians 1:23 if indeed you remain firm in the faith, without shifting from the source of confidence of the gospel that you heard. This gospel has also been preached in all creation under heaven, and I, Paul, have become its servant.

Luke 2:10 And the angel said to them, “Stop being afraid, for behold I bring you good news of great happiness which shall be for all people.

v. 11 “Today in the city of David there was born for your benefit a Savior who is Christ, the Lord.

v. 12 “This sign [σημεῖον (sēmeíon)] is for your benefit: He is wrapped in burial cloths and lying in a feeding trough.”

This is the true meaning of Christmas. The religious leaders were involved in animal sacrifices without realizing that the reality was six miles down the road in Bethlehem.

While the angelic army gathered for a pass in review before its Supreme Commander, Archangel Gabriel informed the shepherds of the arrival of the Lamb of God that was to take away the sins of the world.

Because they understood the sign described by this angel means they had the doctrine to know the Messiah’s mission. As a result, they were motivated to go to Bethlehem and find their Master’s manger.

Luke 2:15 When the angels had gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds began saying to one another, “Let us go straight to Bethlehem then, and see this thing that has happened which the Lord has made known to us.”

v. 16 So they came in a hurry and found their way to Mary and Joseph, and the baby as He lay in the manger.

The Sign

The Lord entered this world prepared
On a cross of wood to die,
While He, wrapped in burial cloths,
In a feeding trough did lie.

Then on high, in rank and file,
Heavenly armies did appear,
Flying through to pass in review
Before the symbolic bier.

From David's line He entered time –
The Lion of Judah's roar –
As Heir apparent to the crown
That Herod in arrogance wore.

Filing by, the angelic throng
Saluted Him with this creed:
"Glory to God in the highest;
His peace to whom He's well-pleased."

Where shepherds watched, attending flocks,
An angel appeared o'erhead;
His message did assuage their fear
With good news that quickly spread.

The prototype system in place,
God's perfect plan went in motion;
Each person's volition must choose
His redemption solution.

He spoke to them of Bethlehem,
Which Micah did prophesy,
"The Savior, Christ the Lord, is born
In David's city nearby."

Oh, what must one do to avail
This eternal salvation?
Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ:
Sin's only absolution.

And then he gave to them a sign
By which to identify
The One who would be sacrificed
For man's sins and then to die.
