

5. Being in this advanced stage of reversionism is indicated by the constative aorist tense of boúloomai. The passive voice means the subject receives the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is in the third-class condition within an indefinite relative clause.
6. What all these grammatical details indicate is that this collection of reversionists have spent a tremendous amount of time using their volition to decline into a soulish state of corruption caused by the execution of numerous decisions leading to their current state of perversion.
7. This situation is presented as the result of believers who used the freedom of their volitions to make choices that could have advanced them to one of two eventual outcomes: (1) the expanse of time spent declining into debauchery or (2) the expanse of time that could have been spent advancing toward the sophisticated spiritual life.
8. Volition's options may be depicted by the balance beam of a scale suspended at its center by a support post. At each end of the balance beam, are hung weighing pans. At one end is a known value of weight while at the other a substance is systematically added whose value is determined when the beam's ends are balanced.
9. But in our example, a person's volition is free. He may use it in any way he desires. At the moment of salvation, the pan's inventory of doctrinal viewpoint is minimal so the pan's content stays above the support post.
10. In the opposite pan is human viewpoint, human good, evil, self-centeredness, arrogance which causes it to rest at the bottom of the support post which must be steadily dealt with by means of spiritual growth.
11. When one cosmic concept is conquered by the inculcation, retention, facilitation, and application of biblical absolutes, that condition is systematically removed from one pan and replaced by divine viewpoint on the other. This ultimately results in living the sophisticated spiritual life.
12. When a believer continues his progress in the spiritual advance, his biblical inventory descends while his personal sins are removed and thus ascends.
13. Yet, after a while, the boring Bible classes become way too boring. He drifts away from his obligation before God to continue the spiritual advance.
14. Over time his reverse process reversionism causes doctrinal standards to diminish while he re-facilitates his old habits and acquires newer ones.
15. Ultimately, he becomes a Christian derelict, described by James in James 4:4 as having become "an enemy of God."

(End JAS4-04. See JAS4-05 for the continuation of study at p. 41.)

16. This describes what is going on in James 4:1–4. When an individual places his personal faith in Jesus Christ for salvation but does not then begin the process of growing in grace at a local church, the Satanic Academy’s Cosmic Didactics will continue as his facilitated points of reference for decision making, problem solving, and behavior patterns.
17. The predictable result is further decline into the Dark Side’s indoctrination from its curriculum. Doctrine is repulsed while human viewpoint, human good, and evil are aggrandized.
18. The verse continues with the phrase, “Therefore, whoever has decided” and followed by, “to be a friend of the world.” The verb “to be” is the present active infinitive of εἶμι (eimi): “to keep on being.”
19. This indicates that a carnal believer goes through the stages of reversionism to arrive at this point of debauchery. The end result is next referred to as a “friend of the world.” The word the King James translates as “friendship” and the NASB selects as “friend” is the noun, φιλία (philia): “lover.”
20. The word, philia refers to focusing one’s attention and affection on what he habitually invests his time and energy. This is expressed by involvement in a lifestyle of debauchery, decadence, and depravity mentioned in verses 1–3.
21. These typical behavior patterns confirm the believer’s primary interest in life is the curriculum taught by the Dark Side’s faculty.
22. The obvious result concludes the verse which states the very opposite of how a believer is to conduct himself: “Therefore, whoever has decided to keep on being a lover of cosmos diabolicus” is followed by the present middle indicative of the verb, καθίστημι (kathístēmi): “appoints.”
23. Kathístēmi is in the middle voice which means that he reflexively appoints himself to a position. This self-appointed position is found in the feminine adjective, ἐχθρός (echthros): “enmity, hatred, hostility.” Together they may be expressed by the word “enemy” but with a deep-seated enmity.
24. The One to which this enmity is expressed is revealed by the proper noun, Θεός (Theos): “An enemy of God.” From this exegesis, we now have an expanded translation:

James 4:4 You adulteresses, do you not already know that keeping on being a lover of cosmos diabolicus is tantamount to alienation from God? Therefore, whoever had decided to be a lover of cosmos diabolicus does with enmity appoint himself an enemy of God. (EXT)

Principles from James 4:4

1. In this verse, the phrase, “a lover of this world,” is mentioned twice. The noun, “world,” translates the Greek κόσμος (kósmos). Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer coined a Greek phrase to describe this planet in terms of its perpetual, political shenanigans throughout history.
2. Chafer’s magnum opus, Systematic Theology, reveals the totality of Luciferian influence on this world that has prevailed since the fall of the original couple in Genesis and will remain unabated until the Second Advent of Jesus Christ.
3. The following excerpt from his second volume provides an overview of this period of world history:

The translation of ‘world’ by cósmos is peculiar to the New Testament and presents a wholly new revelation in the progress of doctrine. An attentive consideration of the 186 uses of cósmos, where it is translated ‘world,’ will reveal that in every instance where moral values are involved, the sphere of satanic influence and authority is indicated. The New Testament conception of the world is that it is opposed to God as worldliness is opposed to spirituality. The inattentive Bible reader apparently thinks of the world, as ... a planet whereon both good and evil are equally at home. They are unaware of the revelation which the word cósmos conveys. The darkness of the cósmos is implied when Christ said, [1] “I am come a light into the world” (cósmos<sup>1</sup>—John 12:46). [2] “Thus, likewise, it is promised of the Spirit that He would “reprove the world” (John 16:8). [3] To the believer it is said, “In the world you shall have tribulation” (John 16:33). [4] And, again, “They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world” (John 17:14). [5] Thus equally definite is the word of Christ, “The world has not known you” (the Father — John 17:25), [6] Similarly, “My kingdom is not of this world (John 18:36). Certain other short phrases are most expressive:

[7] “Sin entered into the world (Romans 5:12); [8] “That all the world may become guilty” (Romans 3:19); [9] The world by wisdom knew not God (1 Corinthians 1:21); [10] The fornicators of this world (1 Corinthians 5:10); [11] “That we should not be condemned with the world (1 Corinthians 11:32); [12] “Without God in the world (Ephesians 2:12); [13] “Keep himself unspotted from the world” (James 1:27); [14] “The corruption that is in the world” (2 Peter 1:4); [15] “Escaped the pollutions of the world” (2 Peter 2:20).

The cósmos is a vast system that Satan has promoted, which conforms to his ideals, aims, and methods. It is a civilization now functioning apart from God—a civilization in which none of its promoters really expect God to share, who assign to God no consideration in respect to their projects; nor do they ascribe any causativity to Him. This system embraces its godless governments, conflicts, armaments, jealousies, its education, culture, religions of morality, and pride. It is that sphere in which man lives. It is what he sees, what he employs. To the uncounted multitude it is all they ever know so long as they live on this earth. It is properly styled the satanic system, which phrase is in many instances a justified interpretation of the so-meaningful word, cósmos. It is literally a cósmos diabolicus.<sup>2</sup>

4. Those James addresses are believers, who have betrayed the Word of God and their Savior by their failures to grow in grace. Absent doctrine, believers are easy pickings for the allurements of cosmos diabolicus.
5. In fact, this context refers to believers in reversionism which includes rejection of both doctrinal and establishment viewpoints. They are being called out by James.
6. In addition, unbelievers, absent any divine viewpoint at all, are completely vulnerable to the temptations of the devil’s world. Their error is isolated to their rebellion against the laws of divine establishment.

7. The current Zeitgeist in client nation America is an ongoing exposition of this category of unbeliever reversionism. The typical giveaway from their rationales is the inversion of thought.
8. In an ordered society, the culture's standards and morals are based on the privacy of the individual and the sanctity of his personal property. As long as these standards are sacrosanct, every citizen is free to live as he pleases.
9. The cultural downtrend in the United States has for over a century been under assault, not primarily from those whose ideas are a threat to the commonwealth, but that they have been propagandized to believe the machinations promoted by Lucifer's total control of this planet.
10. The result is the constant transformation of establishment and biblical standards through the curriculum taught in the Satanic Academy of Cosmic Didactics:

1 Timothy 4:1 But the Holy Spirit explicitly reports that in the latter periods of times [ the dispensation of the Church Age ], some shall become apostate, paying attention to deceitful spirits [ faculty of the Satanic Academy of Cosmic Didactics ] and concentrating on the doctrines of demons,

v. 2 by means of hypocrisy from the source of liars [ graduates of the Satanic Academy ] seared in their own conscience as by a branding iron [ inversion of thought: truth exchanged for the lie ]. (EXT)

NOTE: James 4:4–6 presents problems regarding its exegesis. Verse 4 has a poor translation in the King James Version that was somewhat improved by the New American Standard. Also, James's Greek text provides a possible synopsis of a quote by Solomon in Proverbs 3:3–4. Whatever his source, James summarizes it in a parenthesis. Afterward, James then quotes Solomon's text in verse 6.

We start by quoting verse 4 from its expanded translation followed by the translation of verse 5 from two versions:

James 4:4 You adulteresses, do you not already know that keeping on being a lover of cosmos diabolicus is tantamount to alienation from God? Therefore, whoever has decided to be a lover of cosmos diabolicus does with enmity appoint himself an enemy of God. (EXT)

James 4:5 Or do you think that the Scripture speaks to no purpose: "He jealously desires the Spirit which He has made to dwell in us"? (NASB)

1. It is also important to note that the King James Version's translation of James 4:5 contains a blasphemous statement:

James 4:5 Do you think that the scripture saith in vain, "The Spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy [  $\phi\theta\acute{o}\nu\omicron\varsigma$  (phthónos): best translated "jealousy" ]?" (KJV)

2. How that got past the proofreaders at Westminster is a mystery, but there it sits in the clear light of day: "The Spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy." I don't think the word "blasphemy" even starts the process of critiquing this sentence. Words to describe its use in this verse challenge the vocabulary of the English language, but what follows offers a paltry effort:

Profanation (prŏf'-a-nā'-shun). Act of profaning; specifically, act of violating sacred things; desecration. Syn. Profanation implies irreverence or contempt as shown in vulgar intrusion or vandalism; desecration, a loss of sacred character, as through pollution, defilement, or reduction to secular usage; sacrilege, a maltreatment of something sacred. Profane (prō-fáne). 1. To violate or treat with irreverence, obloquy (öb'-lō-quy), or contempt (something regarded as sacred). 2. To debase by a wrong, unworthy, or vulgar use. 4. Serving to profane or defile that which is holy; blasphemous; irreverent.<sup>3</sup>

3. In James 4:5, the phrase, "The spirit that dwelleth in us" can only refer to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in all Church-Age believers. In the KJV, the Holy Spirit is said to "lusteth to envy." Yes, this is found in a Bible, but only in the King James Version's English translation published in 1611.
4. In Scripture, the nouns,  $\phi\theta\acute{o}\nu\omicron\varsigma$  (phthónos) and  $\zeta\eta\lambda\omicron\varsigma$  (zēlos) are translated into English by both "jealousy" and "envy." However, context determines which to use. This statement is a profanation as noted above so it is at first impossible to choose one. Nevertheless, as we go through the exegesis it will be revealed.
5. Now let us start serious exegesis of James 4:5. It begins with the disjunctive interrogative,  $\eta$  (hē): "Or," followed by the phrase, "do you think." "Think" is the present active indicative of the direct question,  $\delta\omicron\kappa\acute{\epsilon}\omega$  (dokéō): "presume." This is the best translation because of the subjectivity of the statement.
